Volume 7, Issue 3

August 2021

Dear Bedford County Farm Bureau Members,

At the time of our first census in 1790, 95% of Americans lived in rural communities, and most families had to grow their own food. Today, less than 20% of Americans live in rural communities and only 1% are farmers and ranchers. At the American Farm Bureau Annual Convention in 2014, Secretary of Agriculture Tom Vilsack spoke about freedom. He noted that because 1% of the population chooses to farm, the other 99% are free to pursue their passion.

Farmers don't like to brag. We value a hard day's work, doing right by our neighbors, caring for our families, and growing the food we all depend on. We all want to leave our land better than we found it, and we had hoped our actions would speak for themselves. For a long time, we didn't talk much about our achievements. But we learned that if we don't tell our story, someone else will, and they might not get it right. We know that farmers and ranchers have a great story to tell, and we should all be proud to share it.

Consumers want to know more about where their food comes from. Deep down, I think there is a bit of the farmer spirit in each of us: it's in our nature to want to grow something with our own hands and be able to put it on the dinner table. The pandemic seems to have inspired many first-time gardeners. We all feel a deep connection to our food: Our meals are more than nourishment, as we gather around the table as friends, family and neighbors to share our joys and our sorrows.

This heightened interest in the source of food brings an incredible opportunity to tell our story. We have almost limitless options and outlets to share our farm stories today. Most of us carry around everything we need in our pocket – a smartphone. Sharing a photo of a calf being fed, a crop being harvested or a new technology being used and sharing it on social media can bring those in your social circle a little closer to the farm. And if you are interested in opening your farm for agritourism, there are some tremendous success stories serving as examples. We have a great story to tell, and a great opportunity thanks to a curious public. There has never been a better time to engage. So be proud of your profession and get out and tell your story. If you need help telling your story, reach out to Farm Bureau and we will help.

Your County Farm Bureau is working to tell agriculture's story by being involved in events and programs around the county. However, we need more help. If you are willing to volunteer give me or any board member a call.

I look forward to seeing you at our upcoming event. We will be having our Policy Development Meeting on August 17 at Beverly's Touch of Class, 112 East Pitt St., Bedford. Our 3rd Annual Bedford County Farmers and Agribusiness Appreciation Picnic is at a new location this year. It will be at Shawnee State Park, Pavilion #2 on August 20. We will be presenting the Bob Detwiler Memorial Scholarship to the winner at the picnic. Another location change will be our Annual Meeting on October 12th, it will be at Homewood at Spring House Estates. Again, I look forward to seeing at our County Farm Bureau events. Thanks for your continued support of Farm Bureau and for being a member of Bedford County's Largest Agricultural Organization.

Sincerely yours,
Kenny Stanton

Applications Open for Dairying for Tomorrow Awards

Applications will be accepted through Aug. 16, for American Dairy Association North East's 2021 Dairying for Tomorrow awards. The awards recognize farmers' passion for dairy and those who use exemplary practices in three categories: animal care, community outreach and environmental stewardship. A new online application form, complete with award criteria and details, is available on AmericanDairy.com. The overall winner in each category will receive a donation of $1,000 and each honorable mention winner will receive a donation of $500 in their name to provide dairy products to a regional food bank, or to a local school to support the storage and delivery of dairy to students.

Nominate an 'Advocate' for PAL Award

Know someone passionate about agricultural literacy and outreach? The Pennsylvania Friends of Agriculture Foundation is seeking the best ag advocates to apply for the Partnership in Agricultural Literacy Award.

The award program, established by the National Agriculture in the Classroom Organization, celebrates the best in agricultural literacy efforts by recognizing individuals, organizations, programs and events that embody the advancement and innovation in agricultural literacy.

The winner will be recognized at the foundation breakfast during the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Annual Meeting. The winner's application will then be submitted to the national contest.

For more information and a copy of the application and guidelines, contact Charlene Shupp Espenshade at cmespenshade@pfb.com or 717.724.9499.

Mental Health Resources Available

Research has found that many farmers are experiencing new stress and mental health concerns as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic, the farm economy and other pressures.

If you or someone you know is struggling or has concerns about their mental health, please know that you are not alone and there is help available.

There are unique factors that affect stress in the farming community as well as unique warning signs that someone is struggling. Those include:

- Change in routines or social activities
- Decline in the care of domestic animals
- Increase in illness or other chronic conditions
- Increase in farm accidents
- Decline in appearance of the farm
- Decreased interest in activities or events
- Signs of stress in children including struggles with school

Help and Resources Available:

- National Suicide Prevention Lifeline: Call 1-800-273-TALK (8255) or use the online chat at suicidepreventionlifeline.org/chat 24/7 for free and confidential support and to be connected with a skilled, trained counselor in your area.
- Crisis Text Line: Text HOME to 741741 for 24/7 support via text.
- PA 211 is a United Way statewide partner which offers trained resource navigators who can tell farmers what services may be available in their area to help with a variety of health and human service needs, from utility or food assistance to mental health support. Visit www.pa211.org, dial 211 from any landline or cell phone, or text your zip code to 898-211.
- Avera Health Farm and Rural Stress Hotline: Call 800-691-4336 to be connect with a skilled, compassionate mental health professional.

Cover Crop Rules for Prevented Planting Updated

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will now allow agricultural producers with crop insurance to hay, graze or chop cover crops for silage, haylage or baleage at any time and still receive 100 percent of the prevented planting payment.

Previously, cover crops could only be hayed, grazed or chopped after Nov. 1, or the prevented planting payment would be reduced by 65 percent.

The change gives producers greater flexibility for the 2021 crop year and into the future.

USDA's Risk Management Agency will not consider a cover crop planted following a prevented planting claim to be a second crop. But RMA will continue to consider a cover crop harvested for grain or seed to be a second crop, and that crop would therefore remain subject to a reduction in the prevented planting indemnity.

Tax Provisions on Crop Insurance, MAVs Included in Budget Package

Two tax provisions that will benefit Pennsylvania farmers—one offering flexibility related to state taxes on crop insurance payments and another clarifying when multipurpose agricultural vehicles are exempt from state sales tax—have been adopted as part of the 2021-2022 state budget package.

The measures, both of which Pennsylvania Farm Bureau advocated in support of, had been introduced as stand-alone bills but were rolled into the tax code bill that accompanies the budget.

The provision on crop insurance allows farmers to defer crop insurance payments from state income taxes for one year, bringing state tax policy on crop insurance in line with federal rules. PFB believes the move gives farmers greater flexibility in paying taxes on crop insurance payments at the times when they need it the most. Because crop insurance payments are triggered at times of severe weather and significant crop loss, farmers receive such payments when the year did not go as planned. Greater flexibility for state income taxes will help farmers manage income and expenses in difficult years.

The other measure clarifies when purchases of MAVs for agricultural purposes are exempt from state sales taxes. Farmers receive a sales tax exemption when purchasing MAVs to be used primarily for farming. However, the state Department of Revenue has a narrow definition of what is considered a farming activity. Many farm chores—maintaining and repairing pasture fencing, for example—fall outside of the department's definition.

PFB has heard from an increasing number of members who have faced state tax audits after claiming the exemption for MAVs used on the farm and had to pay state sales tax because their use of the equipment did not meet the department's criteria for farming. The measure expands the scope of activities considered "farming" to include the wide range of ways MAVs can be used on a farm to support the farmer and their business.

Agritourism Civil Liability Reform Signed Into Law

Pennsylvania farm families will have more opportunity to diversify their businesses and connect with their communities around food and agriculture thanks to a new law that addresses a significant legal barrier to offering agritourism activities.

Gov. Tom Wolf recently signed legislation to enact commonsense legal protections for agritourism—one of Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's top legislative priorities for close to a decade—following its passage by the General Assembly.

PFB worked closely with state Rep. Barb Gleim to introduce the legislation, House Bill 101. The state House passed the measure in February with a bipartisan, 142-60 vote. And the bill gained widespread support in the Senate, which passed the bill 48-2 last month.

The law's adoption is a major victory for Pennsylvania agriculture and PFB's grassroots advocacy. Farmers have sought for years to secure civil liability limits for agritourism to help family farms remain viable through a changing farm economy and connect with their communities around family fun and local food. PFB led the effort to put momentum behind the measure, making it a priority of the organization's grassroots advocacy campaign and holding a news conference last fall to build support.

"This commonsense legal reform will help Pennsylvania's family farms preserve their futures so they can continue to grow their rural communities and enhance our state's agricultural heritage," PFB President Rick Ebert said. "Farmers prioritize safety; but farms are natural environments and it's impossible to eliminate every hazard. This reform will enable Pennsylvania farm families to safely invite the public to experience agriculture without having to risk their farms' futures or pay cost-prohibitive insurance premiums."

The law offers commonsense legal protection to farms that invite the public onto their property for agritourism activities, such as corn mazes, pick-your-own produce, hayrides, and similar attractions. Specifically, farms that offer agritourism activities will now have reasonable protection from lawsuits that arise from circumstances beyond their control and in which no party is at fault as long as they warn visitors of the inherent risks of being on a farm, such as uneven ground, weather, and unpredictable animals.

At the same time, farmers will still need to take reasonable steps to ensure guest safety. The law does not give farms a free pass from ensuring guest safety and farms can still be held accountable if they fail to fix or warn patrons of obvious and dangerous safety risks. The measure is modeled off similar laws already on the books in at least 20 other states, including New York and Ohio.

The threat of frivolous lawsuits has been a significant barrier for agritourism operations. In addition to putting their farms at risk by inviting the public onto their property, farmers who engage in agritourism have difficulty finding insurance coverage or have to pay high premiums due to the legal risks involved. The new law limiting civil liability seeks to address this challenge.

"PFB thanks the General Assembly for taking this important step to strengthen Pennsylvania agriculture and thanks Gov. Wolf for quickly signing this reform into law," Ebert said. "We are especially grateful to Rep. Barb Gleim, who introduced and championed this legislation, as well as the Republican and Democratic chairs of the House and Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs committees who prioritized and helped build bipartisan support for this issue."

PFB will have signage for agritourism operators that's compliant with the new law available for purchase in our building at Ag Progress Days.

Policy Development Time
